Several men are seated at the left side of the conference table. They are dressed in business casual attire, including shirts and jackets. One man in the foreground is wearing a black t-shirt and is looking towards the center of the room. Another man next to him is wearing a green t-shirt and is also looking towards the center. The men are seated at a long wooden table with microphones in front of them.

A woman is seated at the front of the conference table, directly in front of the projector screen. She is wearing a yellow and white sari and is looking towards the screen. She appears to be the presenter or a key participant in the meeting. There are other people seated around the table, but they are mostly looking towards the screen or the presenter.

Several women are seated at the right side of the conference table. They are dressed in traditional Indian attire, including saris and blouses. One woman in the foreground is wearing a white sari and is looking towards the center of the room. Another woman next to her is wearing a pink and white sari and is also looking towards the center. The women are seated at a long wooden table with microphones in front of them.
