Second, Research Scholars Seminar
on

State and Development in Contemporary India

Organised by Subject Association, Centre for Jawaharlal Nehru Studies

On
6th of February 2014

Introduction

The contemporary issues related to the development are quite crucial and significant to understand the India's existing scenario since independence. The state played an important role in shaping the modern Indian nation. The objective of the seminar is to provide a platform to students to exchange the ideas on previous and contemporary development. The purpose behind this is to bring researchers together to exchange new ideas and paradigm on socio-economic and political issues. This will also encourage interdisciplinary work in the area of development studies where scholars from social sciences and humanities can participate and discuss their research projects. The program will consist of poster and paper presentation.

We encourage the participants to participate in either of the aforementioned event based on the broad theme given below.

Broad themes of the Seminar

To build an understanding about the contemporary development issues, the Subject Association, Centre for Jawaharlal Nehru Studies intends to organise the seminar. The seminar is structured around the following broad themes. Participants can either present the Paper or participate in poster making on the following themes:

- Inclusive policy and development
- Political power & marginalisation
- Cultural pluralism
- Food security and rapid industrialisation
- Regional Political Dynamics in India
- International Diaspora
- Insurgencies

Any other theme which is relevant to the title of the seminar will also be accepted.
