M. Gerda Philipsborn (1895-1942) a German Social worker was influenced by Dr. Zakir Husain and his two friends, Dr. Abid Husain and Prof. M. Mujeeb, when they were in Germany for higher studies. She was greatly inspired by their vision of nurturing Jamia Millia Islamia which was at its nascent stage upon their return to India. Forsaking her homeland, she came to Jamia in December, 1932, and was given the responsibility of the Nursery and Primary Schools established a year after. She was a motherly and affectionate mentor and guide for the youngsters and they fondly called her 'Apajaan' or sister. She took special interest in the activities of women and children in Jamia. She involved the women in activities that brought them out from the seclusion of their homes and inculcated familial relations among them. She organized a "National Week" in commemoration of the Jallianwala Bagh tragedy and introducing a new section, "Payam-e-Biradari" in the Weekly Jamia Children's Magazine "Payame Taleem". The purpose of this section was to inculcate a sense of community amongst its readers and to enable them to communicate with each other. She played a pioneering role in laying strong foundations of Jamia. She died here on April 14, 1942.
